FLOWERS OF LOVE

That day Ann overslept and was in a hurry the whole morning. She dressed up quickly, put on her favourite dress and high heels, and went to work. While she was driving, her dad called and reminded her of her sister's birthday. She decided that after work she would buy some flowers and get to the birthday party. As soon as she finished work, she went to the florist's. She entered the shop and asked for a bunch of roses. The florist started preparing a bouquet. Then, he asked her what she wanted to write in the card. 'Just, Happy Birthday', she said. Finally, when she got to the party, she found her sister and gave her the bouquet. The sister opened the card, smiled and read the message aloud to Ann. The message said "I think I've just fallen in love. Please, call me. Tom, the florist".

HIS TIME HAS COME

Keiko was sitting at the hairdresser's. He had a busy day and had to cycle around the city to get everything done. Now, he could relax and have his hair finally done.

The hair salon was a new place recommended to him by his brother-in-law.

It seemed to be a classy place and when he got there, they offered him a drink.

That's why Keiko was now enjoying his favourite drink – margarita. He carefully took another sip of it, and that's the last thing he remembered.

He woke up in a bed and didn't know where he was. He was wearing his clothes, but he quickly realized that he no longer had his wallet, keys and phone. Keiko looked around to find any clues to help him figure out where he was. It looked like a standard cheap hotel room without anything out of the ordinary apart from a large hourglass on a small bedside table. As the last grain of sand silently trickled through the hourglass, the door opened and Keiko screamed...

GAME OVER

Jacob and Sarah were spending their summer holiday at the beach. Every day they had to cross a forest to get to the beach. They spent their days sunbathing, swimming in the ocean and playing Frisbee. One day while playing Frisbee, Jacob threw the disc so far that it landed in the nearby forest. He didn't do it for purpose, the wind was just blowing so strongly. Sarah quick ran to the forest to get it back. Jacob saw Sarah disappearing into the forest and waited for her. A minute passed and then a few more, but Sarah wasn't coming back. At firstly, he just started calling her name, but there was no answer, so he entered the forest. He was walking further and further into the forest, and all a sudden he saw Sarah's flip-flops on the ground next to a huge stone. Jacob was getting worried that something might have happened and continued looking for her. Suddenly, a wolf with the Frisbee disc in its mouth appeared out from nowhere.
